The International Company's Railroad Survey.

From Yuma to San Diego Via Ensenada.

The Surveying Party Crosses the Desert—Resources of the Country to Be Opened Up.

Some years ago, when the writer was employed as a reporter on one of the Los Angeles newspapers, he was informed by an agent for the International company of Mexico that a survey was about to be commenced by that company for a line of road from Yuma to San Diego via Ensenada. That survey has been completed—with eminently satisfactory results—judging from the following from the Yuma Times: Colonel D. K. Allen, land inspector of the International company of Mexico, and pioneer engineer of the Peninsula Railroad company, from Yuma to San Diego, via Ensenada, came up the Colorado river on Saturday last, having arrived direct from San Felipe, 200 miles south of here, on the Gulf of California. Colonel Allen for the past seven months has been at work carefully examining the lands of the company lying east of the main range of mountains and between them and the Colorado river, and south to Point San Fermín, and in looking up the natural resources and routes over which his company can build their railroad from here to Ensenada, San Diego and other points. All of the numerous questions as to soil, climate, productions, facilities for irrigation, wells, springs, tanks and other opportunities for obtaining water, have received his attention.

He believes that this hitherto supposed desert region has a bright future before it, and with water for irrigation, which, he says, can be obtained, a railroad to open up and develop, if proper efforts to induce immigration of the right class of people to settle upon and till the soil, says that it will be a splendid country. He also believes that the railroad will surely be built and that, too, at no distant period. He has full faith in the plans of the International company and is confident that they will be able to carry out their contract with the Mexican government and settle up Northern Lower California.

Having resided in that Territory for the past eleven years and, during that time, traveled nearly 20,000 miles over the company's lands, while in their employ as land inspector, he is therefore, highly qualified to express an opinion on the future prospects of that section. He scouts at the "hubbubbling" ideas of an excited woman or two and a few loavesmen in San Diego, who only howl coyote-like to hear the echo of their own voices. He says: "I know nearly every Mexican man, woman and child near the frontier, and a more loyal set of people never lived. I do not know of a traitor among them."

They love their Republic and will fight for it to the end. The "hubbubbling" is the outcome of the bile and discolored stomachs of a few dead-beats, adventurers and bad eggs who live in and around San Diego and desire to stir up a muck somewhere! Most of them are deadbeats and cannot pay their board bill, and because they are in trouble themselves do their best to make trouble for others about annexation. No, let Mexico alone! help her to develop the wonderful natural resources that she possesses and thus prove to her that the United States is a sister Republic well worthy of her confidence!

Colonel Allen's report will soon be made to his company. His elaborate maps are nearly finished and will be published and placed on sale. They were prepared with much care and will be of great service to those wishing to visit that region. He believes that there are many good gold and silver mines not yet opened to be had for the prospecting and locating. He has thoroughly explored New river through its branches and tributaries 800 miles, and the wonderful volcanic region has also received close attention. On his trip to the south he traveled 300 miles on foot after losing his mules, and at one time it was feared that he had perished on the desert, but he returned safe and sound. The International company deserve a word of commendation for inaugurating the extensive work described, whereby they will obtain possession of all the important facts relative to the great valley of the lower Colorado river. Colonel Allen returned on Monday to resume the work now nearly completed.
